

Wealthy Shenzhen businessman killed in freak hot tub accident while visiting Macao

A rich businessman visiting Macao with his wife and child drowned on Tuesday in a freak accident involving a hot tub at the Four Seasons hotel.

According to Phoenix, while Wu Jisheng was relaxing in a hot tub, a malfunction occurred with the pumping system, dramatically increasing the flow rate of water leaving the bottom of the tub. Owing to the powerful suction, Wu's buttocks became stuck in the outlet, preventing him from raising his head above the water.

按摩池奪命
示意圖

富商躺在按摩池時，
腰臀被回水口吸實；
其妻及男泳客嘗試救
人，但未能將他拉回
池邊

His wife and nearby swimmers ran over to try and pull Wu out from the hot tub, but were unable to overcome the force pulling him to the bottom of the water. Only after 20 minutes had elapsed did staff at the hotel shut off power to the pumping system, but by this point Wu had already drowned.

Wu is the largest shareholder in a Shenzhen based technology company which conducts research into bio-metric security and timekeeping systems. The company is reportedly very profitable, and Wu often took his family to Macao on holiday, visiting the Four Seasons hotel on a frequent basis.

By Dominic Jackson

Images via [Phoenix]

Contact the author of this article or email tips@shanghaiist.com with further questions, comments or tips.

By Shanghaiist in News on Apr 5, 2015 11:59 PM